

History

Our aim is to help our children develop an awareness of time. We teach them so that they understand how the past was different from the present, that people of other times and places may have different values and attitudes from ours, and how our present has been shaped by the past. We want our children to develop the ability to debate and make judgements about causes. We aim to make the learning of history enjoyable and interesting by teaching it using artefacts, visits, role-play, pictures, ICT and other stimulating resources, and with cross curricular links.
