

Science

Children need to learn about the world around them and understand how things work. We believe that teaching science is about having fun, finding answers to our own questions and testing out our ideas about the world around us. We consider that science is not only a body of knowledge to be learnt but a way of working that will develop confidence, independence and thinking skills. Our teaching of science was graded OUTSTANDING in September 2011 during an OFSTED Science survey.
